

SANTA ROSA CONSULTING, NOESIS HEALTH ANNOUNCE MERGER

Southfield, Michigan and Panama City, Florida. June 9, 2009. Santa Rosa Consulting, LLC, a national provider of consulting services to the healthcare industry and Noesis Health have announced a merger whereby Santa Rosa has acquired substantially all of the assets of Noesis.

Richard Helppie, CEO and Chairman of Santa Rosa said, "Santa Rosa has carefully sought merger candidates who share our values of intense focus on client satisfaction and an equal commitment to support of their people. Noesis has demonstrated these attributes and we are excited about the dynamic combination of the Santa Rosa and Noesis organizations. Noesis enjoys a strong reputation for delighting its clients with its responsive and energetic delivery of services as well as its technical expertise. We believe that leveraging Santa Rosa's business platform, management team, cutting edge client technology and access to capital will propel our combined company."

According to Tom Watford, President and Chief Operating Officer of Santa Rosa, "the addition of Dan Rounds and his Noesis team to Santa Rosa Consulting will enhance our ability to help our healthcare clients transform their business through system interoperability, process improvements and strategic information technology. The service offerings of Santa Rosa are expanded and enhanced by this combination. Our clients will have access to a greater depth of talent and our team of consultants will enjoy greater opportunities. This transaction is a significant step in the advancement of Santa Rosa's strategy of accelerating organic growth with selected mergers. Dan Rounds now joins our other recent executive addition, Joe Lavelle, in helping Santa Rosa to build a deep and experienced management team."

Dan Rounds, Chief Executive Officer of Noesis said, "We are thrilled to be joining Santa Rosa Consulting. Our organizations have a strong cultural affinity, highlighted by a shared passion for excellence in service delivery and outstanding client satisfaction. Noesis has been looking for the right strategic partner to help advance our business to the next level. Santa Rosa offered an exciting combination of operating platform, cultural compatibility and capital resources. The Noesis team believes that this combination of our two businesses can help drive the healthcare consulting industry makeover. Santa Rosa brings fresh ideas along with the strong reputations and relationships of its key executives."
